Our speaker: Dana Palmer

Via Zoom---watch for the link

About our speaker: Dana Palmer has taught at Sinclair Community College and has spoken at national, state, and local genealogy events. She specializes in lineage society applications, publishing family books, and Midwestern research. She also reviews military repatriation cases. She loves problem solving and tracking down those elusive ancestors.

About our program: When traditional records fail to reveal an ancestor's place of origin, cluster research can provide the needed clues. Dana will discuss how to determine the place of origin using records found in the United States and what to do when no records exist on your direct line. A case study showing a Catholic family from the Alsace-Lorraine area of France that settled in Cincinnati by 1831 will be explored.

Everyone is welcome---we hope you will join us.
